

South Seattle Transitional Studies Division offers English Language classes and Adult Basic Education Classes. English Language classes assist students in reaching life-skill goals including college courses and job training. Students in this pathway develop skills in verbal and written communication, critical thinking, multicultural awareness, computer skills, and career and college readiness skills.

There are six levels of English Language classes. English Language classes are 12 hours per week, Monday through Thursday. Classes are offered at three sites: South Seattle College's main campus in West Seattle, Georgetown campus, and NewHolly campus.

English Language morning classes are 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., and evening classes are 6:00 to 9:00 p.m.
