SUMMER WORKSHOP

For Faculty, Student Services Staff,
and Administration at South Seattle College

Creating inclusive space and meaningful identity-based activities for BIPOC students

Hosted by the AANAPISI-South Team

This 2-hour session is designed for faculty who plan to teach identity-based courses, as well as student services staff and administrators who work specifically with BIPOC student populations.

Session participants will engage in group conversations with reflection activities to build and share a deeper connection to their own identity, strengthening our campus community to work more effectively with BIPOC students.

This session is funded by our AANAPISI grant at South Seattle College, focused on increasing underserved Asian American and Pacific Islander (AA&PI) student voices in the classroom and student services.
